MISTAKE ITSELF FOR THE PARTY.

Denton Journal.—The Republican League has no business fooling about policies. The National Conventions every four years are the only legislative authority for parties in general. They are the congresses of all parties.

BUT HE'S A DEMOCRAT.

New York Press.—The Mugwumps in particular were loud in charging the Republican Secretary of the Treasury with doctoring his official reports. But they have not a word to say about Secretary Carlisle, who follows the form of state treatment used by his predecessor.

SETTING UP THE PINS PREMATURELY.

Newark American.—There is but one opinion expressed in the press of the country of the platform adopted by the Republican League Clubs at Louisville, Ky., and that is that it was a work of presumption and gross indiscrimination. Any attempt at running a wheel within a wheel and making the inner wheel master of motive power must fail. The Republican party speaks and acts only through its regularly elected representatives in convention.

DEMOCRATIC RESULTS.

New York Press.—It is now ten weeks since the new Democratic Administration came into office, and in that time the average prices of the active stocks on the list have been steadily falling until the net decline in the past fortnight has been so sharp that the average price is lower than at any time in five years. In figuring this average no account is made of the industrial stocks, which did not figure at all in the calculation at that time. The decline in that class of securities has been even greater. Railroads are making small profits, and are less pessimistic, going ahead with much greater caution, and the want of confidence inspired by the apparent indifference of the Administration has prevented legitimate business from receiving the support which it would naturally command.

THE CHINESE QUESTION.

Times Star.—The Supreme Court of the United States has affirmed the constitutionality of the Geary Act for the deportation of all Chinese, five of the Justices affirming and three dissenting, Justice Harlan being absent.

In giving his dissenting opinion Justice Field characterized the act as "inhuman and brutal" and the decision of the court in sustaining it as "fraught with the gravest dangers to the priceless constitutional liberties of the people." Chief Justice Fuller and Justice Brewer also dissented. A motion was made for a re-hearing and an argument before a full bench, and the court took the motion under advisement. * Assuming that the Geary Act is constitutional, several other questions arise about which people will differ in opinion as widely as do the Justices of the Supreme Court. Is it a sufficient defense that an American has the power to expel Chinese lawfully and peacefully dwelling in the United States? It is not unworthy of a great and liberty-loving nation that it should justify its acts on no higher ground than brute force instead of wisdom or justice?

Suppose China, following the American example, should expel all the Americans from China, simply because she has the power to do so. How could America protest? Or suppose that under a known constitutional right of all men to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, the Chinese should expel all Norwegians or Irish or Italians from American soil? Are the constitutional rights of any race more secure than those of the Chinese? Where is the line to be drawn? We have made a concession on account of race? The Geary Act is an American in that it deprives the accused of the right of trial by jury and compels him to be a witness against himself. It is ex-post facto in its operation and places liberty and property at the hazard of a magistrate's decision alone instead of at the verdict of one's peers. Well may Justice Field speak of such a measure as "fraught with the gravest dangers to the priceless constitutional liberties of the people."

THE NINCOMPOOPS ON DECK!

THE MASON COUNTY COURT OF CLAIMS, Esquire, IN ITS USUAL SMALL POTATO ROLE.

WEEKLY CROP BULLETIN.

Condition of Small Crops Through-out Kentucky to Date.

The weather conditions of the past week were generally more favorable to crops and farm work than those of the three preceding ones.

The temperature was very near the normal, though the nights were rather cool for the season. The first five days gave a nearly average amount of sunshine, while the last five were cloudy and rainy in most parts of the state.

The amount of rainfall was also very near the average, taking the state as a whole, but was very unevenly distributed. In the Central and Northern counties the rainfall for the week was about 1.25 inches, which is nearly twice that received in other sections of the state.

The weather particularly that of the bottom lands, has not yet fully recovered from the drenching rains of the past month, and though improving slowly is in most places unfit to work. This fact, makes farm work very slow.

Much corn planting yet remains to be done, though considerable progress was made with the work during the week. It is believed that much of the corn to be planted in the ground has not yet ripened, and that replanting will be necessary. The general tone of reports in regard to this crop is unfavorable, except in the Northern and Eastern counties, where that which is sown is reported to be in good condition.

Tobacco plants are reported to be unusually fine and very plentiful. In localities in the Southern tier of counties, where the soil could be worked, the tobacco crop is in good shape in the work setting them out was made during the week. In many other places the plants are ready, but the wet condition of the soil precludes its preparation for them. While the central and northern farms weathered the worst of the transplanted wheat, the rest of the state did not fare so well, and there was but little progress in the work of the state within the next ten days. All indications point to a considerable increase of acreage over that of last year.

The officials of Lexington are getting a mighty shaking up. At last the rogues have fallen out. And amid all it is pleasing to know that "This, too, is a Democratic Administration."

It is conducive to profound meditation to read panegyrics on the country's prosperity in Democratic papers which a few months ago represented it as on the verge of National pauperism.

HAVING no vote, our friends the Democrats appear to be quite agreed that "The Chinese must go." And as China will probably retaliate by deporting all Americans, our friends the Missionaries are very much disturbed over the matter.

THE Postmaster-editor of THE PUBLIC LEDGER will presently be charging the Democratic Administration with the big bank failures away off in Australia—Evening Bulletin.

Why, yes; toobesure. There's nothing easier or truer. Isn't Australia a Free-trade country, and isn't this a Free-trade Administration? And doesn't Free-trade invariably result in financial disaster? Say, sonny, ask us something that isn't so easily answered.

THE Infanta EULALIE of Spain threatens to visit the United States, and expects President CLEVELAND to call upon her. This is in accordance with Spanish court etiquette, but is contrary to the plain customs of the United States. The prospective diplomatic perturbation on account of Mrs. EULALIE's visit is exciting no little interest. The trial of "the 400" and Senator BALDWIN, the Spanish Consul General at New York, thinks the President should call upon Spain's royal representative when she arrives. Meanwhile, the plain people don't care to have Senator BALDWIN there with his monarchical notions.

It is estimated by competent authorities that the loss to the people in the shrinkage in the values of securities since March 4th amounts at least to $250,000,000. This enormous depreciation is largely due to the financial policy of the Cleveland Administration. If the Administration had issued bonds, or even if it had definitely announced that it would issue bonds when the Treasury reserve should reach a certain point, this depreciation would have been checked. In refusing to do this Mr. CLEVELAND and his advisers have failed to perform their plain duty as the constitutional servants of the people.

TSUI KWO YIN,

The Chinese Minister's Views of the Geary Act.

He Earnestly Protests Against Uncle Sam's Treatment of Chinese.

He Pointed Out the Importance of the Continuance of Commerce Between the Two Countries—He Promises to Use Influence with the Six Nations.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Chinese situation has produced an unusual manifestation of interest on the part of the Chinese minister. He called at the State department Wednesday with a memorandum and has an interview with Secretary Gresham. In reply to his inquiries as to what the government of the United States intended to do, he was informed, first of the object of the Geary act, to execute the law of congress and next, of the lack of sympathy and personal abhorrence of each individual member of the administration in the performance of the duty imposed upon them. He said he had come to make known that the situation is such that to the lack of an appropriation, that nothing could be done of a wholesale character in the matter of deporting Chinese.

Secretary Gresham took advantage of the visit to reiterate that the Chinese government await the assembling of congress before considering any step toward retaliation, particularly against American residents in the flower kingdom. The court, he explained, would have to try each individual case, and, if necessary, to make a special investigation of the worth of each individual before the deportation of a sufficient number of ships, before any deportation could take place.

The Chinese minister was in a most grieved mood. He fully admitted the ownership the Six Companies exercised over his countrymen, and promised to use all his influence to get the vessels of this corporation to comply with the law. His protest, however, against the iniquities to which Chinese men had been subjected in contradistinction to the immigrants from other countries who made the United States their home, and he pointed out the importance of the continuance of commerce between the two countries. An older nation the Chinese minister had said his country could afford to be patient, hoping that good sense would yet prevail, and that there would be no necessity for the withdrawal of diplomatic and commercial relations.

The minister suggested that the Americans had sought the Chinese, not the Chinese the Americans. In this connection he referred to the visit to the Chinese minister by the Chinese ambassador, two special ambassadors from that country, sent to China with the hope of opening up trade between the empire and the Pacific states. Up to that time no trade whatever had existed between the two countries. China had herself refrained from all intercourse with this country. Burlingame and Stanton were successful in their mission, and induced China to break loose from her old conservatism and her exclusive relations with the English, and to commence trade with this country. The minister also referred to the fact that when Burlingame and Stanton arrived in San Francisco, on their return from China the whole city was illuminated, and the people turned out en masse in a demon stration of welcome. He congratulated the successful ambassador.
